

This activity diagram represents the logical process of finding the low coherence percentage that is presented in the summary view of the device. (Note that the process for finding time in medium and high are the same)

